HOUSE & GARDENS

Introduction

Chiswick House, a Grade I listed building in West London, is a great example of 18th century British architecture. The third Earl of Burlington, designer of this Neoclassical, Palladian villa drew inspiration from his Grand Tours in Italy.

The Gardens are birthplace of the English Landscape Movement and underwent a £12m restoration project which has reinstated the original vistas and repaired the statues and garden buildings.

During its long history, Chiswick House has also been used as an asylum and a fire station, and during World War II it was damaged when a V-2 rocket hit one of the wings.

Filming and photography is welcomed at Chiswick House and Gardens. The estate has been used for many major productions including Bridgerton, The Great, Killing Eve, Pennyworth and You. The Grade I listed Gardens famously played host to a number of music videos for The Beatles and a live wedding on Ant & Dec's Saturday Night Takeaway.
